Withdrawal of Allowable Subject Matter

The indicated allowability of claims 12 and 13 is withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference to Frick et al. A rejection based on the newly cited reference is discussed in detail below.

Claim Objections

Claim 13 is objected to because of the following informality: in line 2, “adjace” should be changed to --adjacent--. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 11, 12, 14, and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Frick et al (US 4,281,619).

Frick et al provide an apparatus for applying an adhesive to a substrate comprising a housing (10) having an inlet passage (1), a plurality of dispensing passages with exit openings (16a 13a), and a recess (not numbered) in fluid communication between the inlet passage and the exit openings; a rotatable valve element (20) disposed in the recess, the valve element having a plurality of apertured sections (13, 16) each in alignment with a dispensing passage wherein a first one (13) of the apertured sections is disposed in a direction opposite of a second one (16) of the apertured sections to define apertured sections circumferentially offset or misaligned with respect one another (see Fig. 3).

With respect to claim 14, there are two apertured sections (13, 16) and two dispensing passages (13a and 16a).

With respect to claim 15, as shown in Fig. 3, a portion of valve (20) having apertured section (13) aligned with a dispensing passage including exit opening (13a) are in alignment, adhesive is dispensed from the valve onto a substrate (not shown).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claim 13 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Frick et al (US 4, 281,619).

Art Unit: 1734

The teachings of Frick et al have been mentioned above but Frick et al appear to further suggest that the apertured sections may be disposed about 180 degrees apart as evidenced by col. 2, lines 60-67. Frick et al are silent concerning setting the apertured sections apart by 90 degrees. However, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide apertured sections less of a distance apart, including 90 degrees, in order to reduce the time needed to supply and recycle adhesive, thereby lowering manufacturing costs.
